MARKET SLIPS ON BLUE NEWS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Crop conditions were again a powerful influence in the stock market and unfavorable advices resulted in a recession of 1 to 2 points.

The market was hesitating in the early hours. The only movements of importance were those of persistent pressure in Steel, Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific. The lowest prices were made in the last hour when the only real animation of the day was witnessed.

Steel's weakness was made the occasion of rumors that independent manufacturers contemplate a general reduction in prices in the hope of stimulating new business.

Money rates were unchanged except for thirty days which were slightly stronger. Forecasts indicate a small cash gain for the week.

Bonds evinced a lower trend in sympathy with stocks. Governments unchanged on call. Total sales, par value, $1,250,000.

PAINE, WEBBER MARKET

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—The whole list had a small reaction today. The buying enthusiasm seems to have lessened and attempts to take profits resulted in a small general decline. Don't be fooled by this little reaction. Underlying conditions are improving every day and we are in for a much further rise. Of course some of the mining stocks may sell lower on account of labor troubles and a strike at Butte may close down the mines there, but on the whole the trend is upward.

Total sales New York, $58,000. Money 2 1/2 per cent. Metal 15 3/4.

NOTES INFLUENCING THE DAY

(By Levy Bros.)

Acting Governor Glynn's demand today is for the surrender of the executive office by Sulzer. A fight will start and it is to be settled by the courts.

Chicago beef experts predict that the country will experience the greatest shortage of beef in its history next winter.

Dispatches from bankers in the southwest confirm reports of damage to the corn crop in Kansas and the surrounding states.

President Willard says business in the Baltimore and Ohio territory is holding up well. China's production for July was 4,821,185 pounds compared with 3,876,557 in June and 3,100,090 in July 1912.

BENSON HORROR NOT MAGNIFIED

Benson, Aug. 17, 1913. Editor: Daily Review.—The Benson Signal of Aug. 9 has an article entitled "The Industrial School 'Outrage.'" Speaking of the articles published about this affair in The Douglas International and The Bisbee Review the writer says "we can truthfully say that these reports seem to have a political complexion" and he said the Benson Signal report I would have fully agreed with him.

He says: "The physician, Dr. Powell of this city says that Gray's arm was not lacerated (either inside or outside) to the extent indicated in the newspapers reports, and the only evidence of his punishment was a redened skin." Now could it not be that Dr. Powell's material interest, he being the regular physician of the school, might color his report or statement, just a little? He says that the punishment was administered with a broad strap; he fails to tell what kind of strap, it might from that description be a strap of soft glove kid, and from the fact that the only evidence of punishment was a redened skin one would naturally think of some such harmless thing; but what were the facts about this delicate strap? The facts are that it was a piece of very heavy sole-leather about eighteen inches long from where it was nailed to a piece of hard-wood, it was about two and a half or three inches wide in the middle and tapered down to about one and a half inches at the end, a most horrible instrument of torture, with which, if a man would beat a dumb animal, he ought to be punished for cruelty. Remember, these boys were made to strip naked and bend over a chair, and in this position a strong man gave them each twenty-five strokes with this terrible weapon, and every one of the boys, but two, at the examination forty days after they received their beating said the skin was broken by the blows, and the blood flowed, and many of them had scars left by the "redening of the skin" and Gray still had on one side of his person, a scar from two to three inches across that while healed over was fiery red and on the other side quite a large scar that was not yet healed. Dr. Powell acknowledged that the day Gray ran away he dressed those wounds with lint, cotton and ichthylol. Why these dressings if there were no lacerations?

It seems to me that there should be no attempt to cover this matter up, but on the contrary there should be a note of protest go up from every humane person in the state, against subjecting these poor unfortunate to such brutality; the men that are at the head of these institutions are drawing their salary from the people, and we have a right to inquire into the conduct of our servants. Having been one of the physicians who was called to examine these boys I felt as though it was my duty to keep still, after having made my report to the Board of control, but when I see this attempt in the Signal to whitewash such a terrible affair I feel that I have a right to show the other side; the side of those poor helpless victims. I have been informed by good, honest people that the cries of those poor boys were heard for more than two blocks through the thick stone walls of the building within which they received their beatings; and if such things can happen here, right in the midst of a thousand people, what will be the fate of any that manage to bring down the wrath of their masters, when they get them twenty miles from a town. It is unsafe to give any man the power to treat any other human being according to his own sweet will. I would much rather see a child of mine laid tenderly in the grave than to know that he would have to submit to such a brutal process of having "the skin redened."
